Proofreading 9-20. Find and cross out twelve misspelled Basic Words in this news story. Then write each word correctly.

On December 6, I. M. Rich, owner of a shipping empir, reported the theft of two modern art treasures from his mansion. Mr. Rich had planned to arive home early, but his limousine was delayed in traffic. Upon returning home, he found his bedroom window shattered and the artwork gone. His butler did not witness the crime, but earlier in the evening he did see two men parked across from the mansion. The butler will make an efort to furnish a description.

The missing abstract painting "Here Today, Gone Tomorrow" was the subject of a recent esay in Art Now. Mr. Rich wondered if pirhaps he tempted the thieves to rob him by allowing the magazine to publish the article. The other missing art objekt, a sculpture entitled "The Missing Link," is worth more than one millon dollars.

Mr. Rich's sorow over the theft was clearly visible. He vowed to help collect as much evidence as possible.
